UNIVERSIDAD POLITÉCNICA DE CARTAGENA

The great tradition of higher education in Cartagena dates back to the 19th century and the beginning of the 20th century, especially in the fields of technology and economics. Its long history has allowed us to have pioneering centers in the development of regulated technological studies in Spain. Since 1921, these studies have been complemented by business studies, providing the city with the necessary resources to be an example of innovation and sustainability.

Building of the Rector – Universidad Politécnica de Cartagena

In accordance with Article 1 of its statutes, the Technical University of Cartagena is a public institution with full legal personality and its own assets. It was created by Law 5/1998, of August 3, by the Autonomous Community of the Region of Murcia, to provide the essential public service of higher education through teaching, study, research, innovation, and technology transfer.

The geographical location of the UPCT has been essential in understanding its rich and diverse history. This history has not only served to enrich the knowledge and culture of the city but has also allowed the UPCT to be framed within an urban and historical environment. A large part of its facilities are located in renovated historical buildings, such as the Hospital de Marina (18th century), the Antigones Barracks (18th century), the Casa de Misericordia (19th century), and the Cuartel de Instrucción de Marinería (18th century).¹
